John M. (Jack) Reynolds is the founder of Reynolds Group, Private Investment Counselors, LLC (RGPIC). Jack's approach to wealth management focuses on the wealth environment of high net worth individuals, families and private foundations. Specifically, Jack counsels his clients on the performance of their advisers, works to improve interdisciplinary decision-making processes and performs in-depth risk analysis on their portfolios. His approach to managing advisers and decision-making processes across multiple disciplines helps clients gain control of their wealth environment and better position their long-term investment, philanthropic, governance and estate goals.

For the past 30 years, Jack has helped exceptional clients navigate the dynamics of a complex and sometimes turbulent wealth environment by providing highly customized fiduciary and decision-making counsel. In addition to helping with their long-term wealth management goals, clients can gain fiduciary confidence, develop an understanding of investment practices and avoid headline risk.

Jack's extensive and unique combination of investment, legal and entrepreneurial expertise in the high net worth and private foundation marketplaces has fostered beneficial long-term relationships with both clients and colleagues. Prior to launching RGPIC, Jack was a Senior Managing Director of Cambridge Associates, responsible for preserving and enhancing wealth for private clients and foundations with assets between $100 million and $3 billion.
